

Sudden & extra weight gain during Pregnancy ? Inform your doctor today.

Preeclampsia is an undesired complication in pregnancy. Please let your doctor know immediately, if you experience any of these symptoms, mid-way through your pregnancy. These are suggestive of preeclampsia.

- Sudden rise in blood pressure
- Swelling of hands, feet, puffiness of the face
- Unexpected and abnormal weight gain
- Recurrent headaches with no relief from medication
- Abdominal pain
- Nausea and vomiting unexpectedly
- Disturbances in vision – blurring / light flashes

The Lumella™ Test helps in early detection of Preeclampsia which is an undesirable complication in pregnancy. Early detection helps in minimizing the discomforts and reducing the risk associated with Preeclampsia. Request your doctor for more details.

You are at increased risk of Preeclampsia due to any of the following :

1.	Complications in Previous Pregnancy
2.	Blood Pressure Even Before Pregnancy
3.	Kidney Problems
4.	Autoimmune Disease
5.	Twin or More Pregnancies
6.	IVF / Assisted Reproduction
7.	Diabetic
8.	Obese with BMI > 30
9.	Pregnancy After 40 Years of Age

The Lumella test helps in early detection of Preeclampsia, an undesirable complication in Pregnancy